THE ALBANIANS.

Characteristics of This People-Their Division Into Two Factions. From the Boston Transcript.

Every one who has traveled in the Levant has seen Albanians, and purchased photographs of the sturdy, rather handsome ometimes truculent-looking men, with their wonderful white skirts, elaborately ornamental vests, girdled with pistols and dirks galore, and general jaunty air, as if they owned the world, who attend foreign consulates, usher in guests at the embassies, and sometimes conduct parties of tourists. On being told that these men are Arnaouts, or Albanians, those who have read history recall Iskander Beg, Ali Pasha of Janina and Mehemet Ali of Egypt, and immediately take for granted that the nation is Mohammedan, and of the same ilk as the Turkish Bashi Bazouk who figured so prominently in the Bulgarian and Armenian massacres.

As a matter of fact, the great majority are Christians, there beingonly enough Mos-lem renegades among them to serve the purpose of the Turkish government and en-able Abdul Hamid II to recruit his Albanian guards and use them for any dirty work he wants done. It is one of the miseries of wants done. It is one of the miseries of the Balkan peninsula that the Christian population has intermingled with it a Mos-lem population of the same blood and speech, but with the peculiar fanaticism which is apt to attend anywhere in the world a denial of ancestral faith and the acceptance of a dominant religion.

When the change carries with it the distinctive elements of Islam, the result is a ferocity and brutality almost inconceiva-ble. The worst Kurds of the Persian border are those of Armenian descent, but of Moslem faith. The Moslem Bulgarians of the Rhodope mountains are responsible for far more and worse outrages than can be laid to the credit of the Turks themselves, and Moslem Croats, Bosniacs and Serbs

The same thing is true among the people who call themselves "Skipetar," the Eagle people, but more commonly Arnaouts, or Albanians, the last name being that of a single tribe, the Albani, who cepital is Elbassan. The great majority are Christians, about equally divided between the Roman Catholic and the Greek churches, but intermingled with them is a considerable Moslem population of the same race, language, and general characteristics, with. however, the arrogance of a dominant faith, and a contempt for their fellows who have not the inestimable privilege of the

Owing partly to natural vigor and roughness of character, partly to their mountain-ous country, partly to the constant feuds and jealousies fostered by the rival inl jealousies fostered by the rival in-ences of Roman Catholics, Greeks and Moslems, there has been far less develop-ment among the Albanians than among the Greeks or Bulgarians. Southern Albania is dominantly Greek, and with the growth of Greek national life there has been more or less of an effort to draw the Tosk, or Greek Church Albanians, into closer relations, with a view to the extension of Greek influence along the shores of the

JUSTICE TO SHEPHERD.

Time Sets All Things Even and Vindicates Righteousness of Men's Purposes. From the Knoxville Journal and Tribune.

"Time at last sets all thigs even," so says the poet, and generally it is true. Many a man dies before the evening-up process is completed, but in the end right prevails, and merit to which there may have been universal blindness is at last recognized. It requires patience and often courage of a high order to pursue the pathway of right, as God gives one to see the right, but time will vindicate the righteousness of men's purposes. This is strikingly illustrated in an event at the national capital yesterday. Thirty years ago Alexander R. Shepherd was, undoubtedly the most, or at least one of the most popular men in Washington. He was abused and traduced through the local press and by the press all over the country; two men could hardly meet on the streets or about the public places of the city without one or both of them indulging in the most intemperate and gen-erally scurrilous denunciation of Alexander R. Shepherd, then at the head of the local municipal government of Washington. His offense consisted in a determina-tion to make the capital city famous for its beautiful streets and notable parks. He saw that the streets were properly graded and did not stop to consider whose property should be cut down or where fills should be made in order to give the streets and avenues a proper grade. It cost money to do it, and he was charged with extravagance and misappropriation of pub-lic funds. But, deaf to the outcry that was raised against him, he went right along, conscious that he was right and brave enough to do right. The consequence is, our national capital is the pride of all Americans and the admiration of the world. His work done, or so much of it done that there could be no backward step, he left the city, went, as some thought, into voluntary exile, in Mexico, where he, through the same sound business judgment and energy displayed in his official life, achieved a fortune. A little while ago he died there. His remains were taken back to the city for which he did such wonders for interment. Yesterday he was given a notable funeral. The leading men of the city and the country vied with each other in paying tribute to his memory. The public schools of the city were closed for the day as a mark of respect to Washington's and the nation's benefactor. Who would have thought it possible, thirty years ago, that the time would ever come when everybody would agree that this much and bitterly traduced man was right and that the universal public was wrong. Then there were few found who would face the angry mob and defend him. Now everybody concedes that he did a great thing for the capital and for the country. Alexander R. Shepherd has gone to the grave, and whether he fully realized the transformation of public sentiment in his favor, truly in his case time has at last

HIGHER PRICES FOR COFFINS.

Manufacturers Conclude That Their Profits Are Not Big Enough.

"It is going to cost more for a man to die within the next several months than at present, so if any would save money on the matter they had better die at once," From Puck.
